NEW VAUDEVILLE ACTS AT PALACE

Del Gibson, Lauder and Kiscaden and the Elliotts Put on Clever Acts.

The new vaudeville company gave its first performance at the Palace theater this afternoon and proved beyond a doubt that it will score a big success while in the city. The program includes Del Gibson, vaudeville's artistic comedy surprise in singing, dancing and talking stunts; the Elliotts in a novel cyclonic comedy act, which is a scream from start to finish; and Lauder and Kiscaden, in a classy musical act playing all the newest pieces. A comment from the New York Journal dated March 10, says this is a wonderful musical invention played with masterly skill. This team is well known over the entire circuit and comes to Clarksburg well recommended.

A new picture service, the General Film Company, license service, will be used in this theater beginning today, showing new feature pictures daily.

There will be a change of the vaudeville program Wednesday and for Thursday three new acts will be offered.

Henry Otto has his "Flying A" company working on a thrilling detective film story to be called, "Unmasked." It is a tale of the by-paths of a great city, with a sweet girl character as the heroine.

The excellent program at the Orpheum theater today is made up of two great special features. "His Mother's Portrait" is a two-part Mutual feature and is a strong story with a happy ending. "Terror," a two-part Universal feature play produced by the famous Eclair Company, is filled with thrilling scenes and teams with beautiful picturization. Charles Chaplin is on the bill also and does some pesky pranks that bring the smiles.

Tomorrow, the Frohman Amusement Company's great success, "The Builder of Bridges," in five beautiful parts, with the famous C. Aubrey Smith and pretty Marie Edith Wells in the leads will be the feature offering.

"Thou Shalt Not Lie," is the title of a new Imp picture featuring Violet Mercereau and Billy Garwood.

"The Spendthrift," a six-act society drama, is the big offering at the Bijou theater today. Miss Irene Fenwick and Cyril Keightley are the leading characters. It is an extraordinary dramatization of Porter Emerson Browne's celebrated play, "The Fighting Kid," a new one-reel comedy, closes the show.

Tuesday, Earl Williams and Anita Stewart will be seen in the fifth episode of "The Goddess." Charles Chaplin will be seen in Essanay's latest release by this celebrated fun makers, called "A Woman." It comes in two reels. Pathe News No. 53, will be very interesting.

is in three reels. "They Called Him Coward," a two-reel comedy drama produced by the Universal company in five reels, is also shown.

Tuesday, Miss Mary Fuller will be seen in a three-reel drama entitled "Circus Mary," a Victor special. Three thousand feet of other pictures will also be shown.

Orville Harrold, the operatic tenor, and Nat Willis are among the recent engagements of the New York Hippodrome. Harry Askin, who has been in Chicago for some years past, is to be the manager of the house.

One of the new offerings of the season is being presented at the Odeon theater, with the appearance of "The American Girl Company," generally conceded to be one of the best all-around on tour this season. Patrons of this style of entertainment may feel assured that the program will be right up to the minute, with more exclusive feature than can be boasted of by the average show.

The musical comedy put on by this company for Monday and Tuesday is called "The Girl of the Midway." There will be a complete change of program Wednesday.

The photoplay offering today is a three-part Selig drama, "The War of Dreams."

Florence Malone, who has been engaged to play a prominent part in "Under Cover," was with Mrs. Leslie Carter in "Kassa," and last year was leading woman of a western stock company.

The patrons of the Robinson Grand today have every opportunity for a big, healthy laugh and the comedian, Victor Moore, is screamingly so at times. The production is commonly regarded as one of the most laughable satires ever produced on Broadway—"Snoobs"—by George Bronson. Howard "Snoobs" (Mr. Moore), is a milkman, who, though his intentions are perfectly good, has a natural taste for the "high spots" of life and immediately upon getting an advance installment of an inheritance proceeds to purchase most extreme farmsteads, the longest cigars of a special brand and all the other equipment necessary in his eyes for a noble multi-millionaire. This convulsing comedy is in five acts and on the Paramount service.

Tomorrow, "My Best Girl" will be the chief offering.

Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf are to write the American book and lyrics of "Miss Rabbit Foot," an operetta by Kalman, the composer of "Sarl." The piece is to have an early production by Klaw and Erlanger.
